

Am

A do gooder that I knew - all he did was sit & brew about all the good that he could do.

He was fed up most of the time - God he almost lost his mind about all the good that he could do.

He asked a neighbor up the street - Where I gotta beat my feet? The neighbor sighed and scratched his beard said just what the do-gooder feared about all the good that he could do.

He said: Sweep the porch, he said: Walk to the store
He said: Say hello - That's all the good that you could do.

The do gooder was confused - seemed he always got the blues about all the good that he could do.

He had a plan in 1982 for some orphans in Kalamazoo all the good that he could do.

How such a truisim must feel - don't think he ought to be washed. He wrote Dear Abby about his plight her answers in the papers tonight about all the good that he could do.

She said: Mop the floor; she said: Go out the door
She said: don't ignore; that's all the good that you could do.

While he was agonizing late, he passed out into his plate; all the good that he could do.

Now he's shaking and full of grief - doesn't even brush his teeth all the good that he could do.

He got so broke out he didn't see, a lady lying on the street
The same truck that did her in - brought an end to my do-gooder friend all the good that he could do.

as he lay there smashed to bits
he gathered up his wits and spits out all the good that he could do.
