

Would you tell me who do you love
I ask you this today

It's somewhat philosophical and somewhat of a kind Definitely physically

Can we let it hover with all its inferences
Who do you love

Who do you love
Who do you love
Who do you love

There's something in there
There's something in there
There's something in there

When you're way out in a rowboat
When you've got just one word or more

There's main shapes + objects and conjoined dreams + facts

The hands that touch another or that others' face + back

The eyes or pauses clothes and shoes he sounds the intimate words and moves

Together we must roll away before you are alone Ponder words we have
